

NOISE

VIRTUAL MEETING = HEADSET

Working at the office is a great way to collaborate with colleagues and spend time working together. The more people at the office, the more noise there will be.

Be considerate of other colleagues using our workspaces and keep noise levels down. This applies especially when huddling in open plan areas and when taking virtual meetings in an open space, such as your desk or common area.

In the interest of everyone's comfort at the office, always use respectful language during meetings – whether virtual or in-person
